Introducing No-Cost Medicare Help

What is Medicare?

Medicare is government-run health insurance. Generally, those who are eligible for Medicare are 65 or older, meet disability criteria or have end-stage renal disease (ESRD).

Do you find Medicare confusing? You're not alone.

Terms are thrown around like "Parts A through D". Also, some things aren't included in Medicare – for example, Medicare doesn't cover most dental procedures. Plus, there's a myriad of solutions available like Medicare Supplement (Medigap), Medicare Advantage and prescription drug coverage – but which ones are right for you?

Eliminate Medicare Confusion With FREE Help From Transitions Benefit Group

We offer complimentary assistance to help you, your family and friends to understand:

- The different parts of Medicare
- What is and isn't covered
- How Medicare works with employer coverage
- Which Medicare solutions might be most suitable for your needs

Why is this FREE help so crucial?

For those turning 65, there's a seven-month window to enroll in Medicare for the first time. This Initial Enrollment Period starts three months before you turn 65 and ends three months after your birthday month. This enrollment period is your first opportunity to sign up for Medicare Parts A and B, Medicare Advantage and prescription drug coverage options.

Important note: If you don't enroll in Medicare during your initial enrollment period or do not provide proof of insurance under another eligible plan, you may end up paying more for Medicare later on when you do enroll.
